Dr. Sahu began his address by talking about the evolving banking sector, which, according to him, is one of the most promising career fields today. He shared insights into the current trends in banking, particularly the growing role of technology in the sector. With the rise of digital banking, fintech, and artificial intelligence, Dr. Sahu highlighted the importance of developing skills such as data analysis, digital marketing, and cybersecurity.

He motivated students to explore career opportunities in banking, both in the public and private sectors, as well as in emerging fields like mobile banking and blockchain technology. Dr. Sahu stressed that the banking sector offers a variety of roles ranging from customer service to management, and even positions in the digital transformation of banking operations.

Furthermore, Dr. Sahu shared his own journey and the challenges he faced in his career, emphasizing the importance of hard work, persistence, and continual self-improvement. Students were eager to learn about various career paths within the commerce field, including roles in finance, marketing, human resources, and entrepreneurship.
